

Abstract

The invention concerns a method for detecting an analyte in a sample using a luminescent metal complex as a labelling group and a device that is suitable therefor.